Naše politická krajina je zcela zaplavena masivním přílivem oficiální propagandy. Proto není divu, že těch pár viditelných bodů přežívajícího disentu se často nachází mezi těmi jednotlivci, kteří dříve představovali nejvyšší vrcholy žurnalistiky a akademické vědy.

View article as PDF

Seymour Hersh spadá do této kategorie. S Pulitzerovou cenou a pěti cenami George Polka se Hersh rozhodně řadí k nejuznávanějším reportérům posledního půlstoletí, známým prolomením příběhů o masakru v My Lai, vězení Abu Ghraib a dalších mezníků investigativní žurnalistiky.

Před pár dny svrhl bombu, která byla možná tak velká jako cokoli v své kariéře, a informoval o vnitřním příběhu o tom, jak americká vláda zničila energetické plynovody Nord Stream, které jsou pro evropskou ekonomiku naprosto zásadní. Nejenže byly útoky válečným aktem proti Německu, jednomu z našich nejbližších spojenců NATO, ale výbuchy pravděpodobně způsobily největší mírovou destrukci civilní infrastruktury v historii světa, přičemž hodnota ropovodů za 30 miliard dolarů byla mnohem větší než ztráty způsobené útoky z 11. září.

Jak Amerika vyřadila plynovod Nord Stream

The New York Times to nazvaly „záhadou“, ale Spojené státy provedly tajnou námořní operaci, která byla držena v tajnosti – až dosud

Seymour Hersh • Substack • 8. února 2023 • 5 200 slov

Když k útokům došlo loni v září, mnoho pozorovatelů včetně mě si všimlo, že nejvyšší představitelé Bidenovy administrativy opakovaně hrozili eliminací potrubí a pak zakokrhali, když série záhadných podvodních výbuchů tento úkol splnila.

Prof. Jeffrey Sachs z Kolumbijské univerzity uvedl, že přední mainstreamoví novináři mu soukromě řekli, že všichni věří, že za to může Amerika, ačkoli ani oni, ani jejich redaktori by se o takovém scénáři nikdy veřejně nezmínili. A když tak Sachs udělal na Bloomberg TV, jeho rozhovor byl přerušeno a on byl rychle vytržen ze vzduchu.

Profesor Jeffrey Sachs [Columbia] na Bloomberg způsobil chaos a řekl, že USA byly s největší pravděpodobností zapojeny do úniků Nordstream podle údajů a dalších odborníků „dokonce i reportéři mi říkají... soukromě samozřejmě...“ a že jsme na dost nebezpečné cestě k jadernému konfliktu pic.twitter.com/U6FsC2tdp6

Ale zatímco existovalo velké množství informovaných spekulací, Hersh nyní poskytl podrobný popis toho, co se přesně stalo, včetně obvinění, že Bidenova administrativa použila pochybné legalismy, aby se vyhnula informování našich zpravodajských výborů Kongresu o operaci, jak to vyžaduje zákon. . Pokud má Hersh pravdu, naši nejvyšší vládní představitelé mohou být ve vážném právním ohrožení.

Přesto byl jeden z našich největších novinářů nucen prolomit tento obrovský příběh s rozsáhlými mezinárodními důsledky na své vlastní platformě Substack spíše než v titulcích špičkových novin nebo časopisů. Po pěti desetiletích se oblouk Hershovy kariéry vrátil zpět a on se vrátil ke svým kořenům jako zuřivě nezávislý novinář, který získal Pulitzerovu cenu za vietnamskou válku.

Glenn Greenwald, sám impozantní investigativní novinář, byl podobně vytlačen z mainstreamových médií, ale jeho nové noční zpravodajství System Update se stalo důležitým projektem platformy Rumble, který často získal 100 000 nebo více zhlédnutí. Přiměřeně věnoval nedávný program diskusi o hlubokých důsledcích Hershova exilu z mainstreamové žurnalistiky a ignorantských útoků, které proti němu zahájili mladší reportéři, jejichž celou kariéru strávili opakovaním oficiální vládní propagandy.

Hershova situace je šokující, ale sotva ojedinělá. Během posledního roku zaujala mainstreamová a značná část alternativních médií k rusko-ukrajinské válce téměř těsná stanoviska, přičemž rozsah povolených názorů byl pravděpodobně užší a jednotnější, než tomu bylo v době po 9. /11 útoky o dvě desetiletí dříve. Jen ty nejodhodlanější a nejodvážnější hlasy se dokázaly postavit síle tohoto ideologického hurikánu.

Uvažte, že téměř dvanáct měsíců se fráze „nevyprovokovaná invaze Ruska“ opakovala téměř ve všech médiích a zprávách, ačkoli tento popis je absolutně v rozporu se skutečností. Jak jsem napsal krátce po začátku války:

Ačkoli se FoxNews stala jedním z nejběsileji nepřátelských k Rusku, nedávný rozhovor s jedním z jejich pravidelných hostů poskytl velmi odlišný pohled. Plukovník Douglas Macgregor byl bývalý vrchní poradce Pentagonu a důrazně vysvětlil, že Amerika strávila téměř patnáct let tím, že ignorovala nekonečná Putinova varování, že nebude tolerovat členství Ukrajiny v NATO, ani rozmístění strategických raket na své hranici. Naše vláda nevěnovala pozornost jeho explicitním červeným liniím, takže Putin byl nakonec nucen jednat, což vedlo k současné pohromě.

Macgregor byl asi 60krát finalistou nástupce Johna Boltona jako poradce pro národní bezpečnost a hostem na FoxNews, ale okamžitě zmizel z vysílacích médií.

Prof. John Mearsheimer z Chicagské univerzity, jeden z našich nejuznávanějších politologů, strávil mnoho let tím, že vyjadřoval přesně tytéž body a obviňoval Ameriku a NATO z doutnající ukrajinské krize, ale jeho varování byla naším politickým vedením naprosto ignorována. média. Jeho hodinová přednáška vysvětlující tyto nepříjemné skutečnosti seděla v tichosti na Youtube šest let a přitahovala relativně malou pozornost, ale pak náhle explodovala v popularitě během posledních několika týdnů, jak se rozvíjel konflikt, a nyní dosáhla celosvětového publika více než 17 milionů . Jeho další přednášky na Youtube, některé docela nedávné, sledovaly další miliony.

Watch Video At: <https://youtu.be/JrMiSQAGOS4>

Mearsheimerovo zdlouhavé vysvětlování původu ukrajinské války nyní nashromáždilo 28 milionů zhlédnutí, dost možná více než kterákoli akademická přednáška v historii internetu. Ale téměř všechna média a mainstreamový novinář zabývající se tímto tématem zcela ignorovala všechna důležitá fakta, která uvádí.

Bývalý analytik Ray McGovern během své dlouhé a význačné kariéry v CIA řídil sovětskou politiku a také sloužil jako prezidentský zpravodaj, takže za jiných okolností by on nebo někdo jemu podobný v současnosti radil prezidentu Joe Bidenovi. Místo toho se před několika dny připojil k Mearsheimerovi a prezentoval své názory ve video diskusi pořádané Výborem pro republiku. Oba přední experti se shodli na tom, že Putin byl zatlačen za všechny rozumné meze, což vyvolalo invazi.

McGovern a několik dalších expertů na národní bezpečnost byli dotazováni na RT ohledně Hershova příběhu. Jeden z nich zmínil německý zdroj, který znal a který údajně mnohé podrobnosti potvrdil.

Před několika dny jsem na svých webových stránkách polemizoval s okolnostmi ruské války na Ukrajině s několika establishmentářskými komentátory. Zdůraznil jsem, že mé chápání původu konfliktu a jeho současných okolností bylo čerpáno z takových osobností, jako jsou Mearsheimer, Sachs, Macgregor a McGovern, jednotlivci, kteří si vybudovali svou pověst po desetiletí, ale nyní byli vyloučeni z mainstreamových médií pro svůj nesouhlas. pohledy.

Poukázal jsem na to, že vysoce postavení akademici nebo jiní experti mají příliš mnoho sebeúcty, než aby vyhověli bezduchému 99% vyprávění o MSM, o kterém pevně věří, že je nepravdivé, a mají také značnou důvěru ve vlastní protikladnou analýzu. Takže pozorně naslouchám jejich názorům a pokud mi dávají smysl, myslím, že by mohly být správné. Mezitím lze 99 % názorů, které vidím na druhé straně, snadno vysvětlit mediální stádovitou mentalitou a kariéristickými tlaky. Všechny tyto poslední hlasy si jsou dobře vědomy toho, že mohou být povýšeny, pokud účinně hájí oficiální stranickou linii, ale pokud tak neučiní, přijdou o práci.

Přesně stejný vzorec jsem si všiml před katastrofální válkou v Iráku před několika desítkami let.

Ve vlasteneckém zápalu po útocích z 11. září se jen málo osobností národních médií odvážilo zpochybnit plány a návrhy Bushovy administrativy, přičemž sloupek Paula Krugmana v Times byl vzácnou výjimkou; vyjadřování „nevlasteneckých nálad“ jako velmi široce definované by mohlo mít vážný dopad na kariéru. To platilo zejména pro elektronická média s mnohem větším dosahem, a proto podléhající extrémnějšímu tlaku. Během let 2002 a 2003 bylo velmi neobvyklé najít odpůrce války v Iráku kdekoli v síťové televizi nebo mezi začínajícími kabelovými alternativami, a dokonce i MSNBC, nejméně populární a nejliberálnější z posledně jmenovaných, brzy zahájila ostrý ideologický zásah.

Po celá desetiletí byl Phil Donahue průkopníkem denní televizní talk show a v roce 2002 ji oživil k vysoké sledovanosti na MSNBC, ale na začátku roku 2003 byla jeho show zrušena, přičemž uniklé memorandum naznačilo, že příčinou byl jeho odpor k hrozící válce.

Konzervativec Pat Buchanan a liberál Bill Press, oba kritici války v Iráku, uspořádali na stejné síti nejlépe hodnocený diskusní pořad, který jim umožnil zápasit se svými více pro-Bushovými odpůrci, ale i ten byl z podobných důvodů zrušen. Pokud nejslavnější hostitelé a programy s nejvyšším hodnocením kabelové sítě podléhaly souhrnnému ukončení, méně postavené osobnosti jistě vyvodily patřičné závěry o rizicích překročení konkrétních ideologických linií.

Můj starý přítel Bill Odom, tříhvězdičkový generál, který vedl NSA pro Ronalda Reagana a měl jedny z nejsilnějších národních bezpečnostních pověření v DC, byl podobně na černé listině médií za svůj odpor k válce v Iráku. Přibližně ve stejnou dobu „zmizelo“ mnoho dalších prominentních mediálních hlasů, a dokonce i poté, co se Irák stal všeobecně uznávaným jako obrovská katastrofa, většina z nich už nikdy nezískala svá okouna.

Několik měsíců před vypuknutím ukrajinské války jsem vytvořil dlouhý přehled podobných případů za posledních několik desetiletí, příklady vědeckých a novinářských gigantů, kteří správně zpochybnili oficiální vyprávění o důležitých otázkách a v důsledku toho utrpěli krutou odplatu. někdy jsou očištěni z veřejného života. V tuto chvíli ještě nejsou vyjasněna fakta ohledně novinářského účtu Seymoura Hershe a možná se ukáže, že jeho příběh byl mylný. Ale vzhledem k minulému vzoru podobných příkladů, které jsem pečlivě prozkoumal, si myslím, že existuje velká šance, že se jeho vyprávění ukáže jako z velké části správné.

Od prvního okamžiku existovaly ohromně silné nepřímé důkazy, že americká vláda sehrála klíčovou roli ve zničení ropovodů Nord Stream, což byl akt kolosální lehkomyšlnosti. Přestože jeden z našich největších novinářů nyní poskytl přesné údajné podrobnosti o tom, co se skutečně stalo, celá naše mainstreamová média tento příběh přivítala úplnou hradbou mlčení.

Formát EPub • Mobi/Kindle

Vzhledem k této realitě mě sotva překvapuje, že za poslední tři roky se mé vlastní analýze původu Covidu dostalo úplně stejného mlčení. Opět existují drtivé nepřímé důkazy, že globální vypuknutí Covidu bylo odrazem zpackaného biologického útoku proti Číně (a Íránu), což je akt naprosto kolosální lehkomyšlnosti, který nyní zabil přes milion Američanů. Možná v určitém okamžiku vyjdou všechny podrobnosti, ale do té doby bych doporučil sérii článků, které jsem publikoval od dubna 2020, spolu s několika podcastovými rozhovory, které efektivně shrnují materiál.

Not really. Over the last couple of months, Britain’s Daily Sceptic and America’s Brownstone Institute have published a half-dozen articles taking that same position, as you’d know if you’d looked at my recent columns:

Ron, you say,

“Perhaps at some point, the full details will come out, but until then I would recommend the series of articles I have published since April 2020...”

There is sufficient evidence already out there on each topic you mention in the above article. Everybody of reasonable intelligence knows this information. Wallowing in a “series of articles” will achieve nothing. The awakened know all this. There is insufficient time left to wait for the stragglers to awaken.

So, why don't we start DOING something about it. The time for talk and for “reading articles” and for “informing” and for “chatting” is over. Now is the time for a plan. Or is it just quietly and acquiescently onward to the slaughterhouse?

Once they confiscate our bank accounts, declare paper currency to be null and void after a certain date, and convert our savings into cbdc's — it is game over.

No grocery store or gas station will accept the US monopoly money. No Home Depot will barter you a shovel for a box of tomatoes. No small bank or credit union will defy federal law — and nor will the agents of your state government. No one will even be able to leave the country (your cbdc won't be programmed to allow that). You think that you will be able to fend them off with a locked front door, a shotgun, and a backyard garden? Well, think again. They ain't gonna be coming to your door. Gates will simply send a crop duster to spray your land with agent orange or with the magic fairy dust of bioweapon.

Either you, Ron, are one of us “useless eaters” or you are one of Bill Gates’ “stakeholders.” There is no middle position here. And even if you and your immediate family are “currently” privileged stakeholders, it is not a certainty that your great grandchildren shall enjoy that status. It is not even guaranteed that they won’t reverse your status as an “elite.” They owe allegiance neither to integrity nor to written contract.

Time for the great reveal, Ron. You are either with us or with them. If the former, then start to use your brain and writing skills and friends to help puzzle a way out of this.

So, Ron, what is the plan? What. Is. The. Fuckin. Plan?

We owe a great deal to people like Hersh, Snowden, Assange, Ellsberg and many others who have at great personal risk done what they could to bring the truth to the world. It's just so much easier to be a media-government shill and make a well paid living out of it; there's people standing in line for the opportunity to do just that. But now, is anybody listening? There seem to be plenty of views but yet the pattern continues on and on, the government and its mouthpiece media dragging the public from one deception to another for generations now. It just never stops. Apparently all that has to be done is to bamboozle most of the people all the time and they'll shout down contrary views. It would be nice if the mass of people out there were as interested in these things that actually impact their lives rather than in frivolous football scores but I'm not very sanguine about that.

Let me start by saying the preponderance of evidence points to the USA being the motivating force behind this attack. However this article by Hirsch seems too perfectly described to be true.

If he had a single or few source(s) as he claims then the level of detail he includes is beyond the possible scope of such a limited information source. The alleged knowledge of Norwegian involvement and motivation, the claims of the partial truths reported to Sweden and Denmark, the internecine conflict between the different elements of the CIA and DOD as well the reported back and forth dispute between various US political figures all indicate an intimate and multi-layered understanding of the situation that could not possibly be provided by a few sources.

It sounds like an initial source provided the basic, and truthful claims of the US involvement in the attack, and then Hersh manufactured an interesting but unproven (and likely false) narrative to fill in the details.

So when someone takes a kernel the truth and then surrounds of with lies for self promotional reasons, it does us a disservice by causing us to question all of their claims, no matter how true the initial claim may be.

I have already stated my position on the text of SH. I was even one of the first to point to his text here at unz. I'm trying to understand what the objections to his text are. What was he trying to hide and whom was he trying to protect by diverting attention to something else?

The only thing that bothers me is the minimized British role in all of this. Does the sms 'it's done' that Liz Truss sent to Blinken a couple minutes after the explosion, which forced her to resign, makes sense now? Maybe the British had an auditing or supervisory role to monitor and report every milestone of the project?

Meanwhile, the 99% of the views I see on the other side can easily be explained by media herd-mentality and careerist pressures. All of those latter voices are well aware they that they may be promoted if they effectively advocate the official party line but lose their jobs if they fail to do so.

Maybe so, maybe the 99% of journalists marching in lock-step with the government narrative can really be explained by the simple mechanics of the crowd, but it is impossible to believe that the “intelligence community“ is sitting on the sidelines not playing an active role in the process.

The active interaction of that community with Twitter, which came to light in these hearings doesn't seem to be exposing any Hamlet-ian vacillations or even the slightest hesitancy on the part of these agencies to directly interfere in the dissemination of news, the 1st amendment be damned.

And what is crystal clear is that the MO is that of a well-worn routine.

How could it be otherwise when these agencies have specialized in these practices and do so routinely elsewhere (everywhere) in the world.

| If Hersh is correct, our top government leaders may be in serious legal jeopardy.

This reminds me of something Mike Whitney wrote recently
(What Hersh Got Wrong):

| Hersh's article has the potential to greatly undermine the credibility of the people in power and, by doing so, bring the war to a swift end.

Both statements seem incredibly naive to me, if not dishonest in the sense that they understate the seriousness of the situation — regarding any ‘legal jeopardy’, exactly who is going to hold the Biden administration accountable?

And about ‘the credibility of the people in power’, go find and watch that video of Hillary Clinton cackling like a deranged lunatic over the gruesome killing of Qaddafi (‘We came, we saw, he died’) — the ‘people in power’ continue to fete her, and endorsed her 2016 bid to be president as one-sidedly as I have ever seen — at the absolute latest, in the eyes of decent people ‘the credibility of the people in power’ was destroyed then.

Be fair. Some people don't notice or don't mind that when Ron leaps in with his individual theories he hunkers down and refuses to back off claims of overwhelming evidence that simply don't stand up. He knows very well that the intelligence community had quite enough anti Trump people to make what he calls the "smoking gun" easily explained as an anti Trump set up. He ignores it. And he gives no reason to suppose that a malicious spreading of the virus in Wuhan was not motivated by speculative financial greed.

In the case of the Nordstream pipelines he has persistently exaggerated the damage done and its economic and political consequences. It is not Germany that suffers from repairable damage to pipelines which were not delivering gas and one of which no longer looked likely to. It could go on getting its gas through Ukraine if Russia continued to supply it. It would certainly be embarrassing if the US could have been proved to have carried out (alleged) threats to prevent Nordstream 2 from operating. But it is far from impossible that Russia would do it and count on the US getting the blame since it wasn't going to get any other short term benefit from the pipelines.

A bit odd that our host Mr Unz does not address key points made yesterday by Mike Whitney in ‘What Hersh Got Wrong’, key points especially relying upon the important Australian-born alt-journalist John Helmer who has lived in Russia for decades.

Helmer showed how limited-hang-out Hersh is distracting from broader truth with his ‘USA plus a few Norwegians’ story

With details and links, Helmer points out that Hersh completely ignored much available material on the Nordstream pipeline explosion and its planning which implicates:

- the Danish government
- the Polish government
- the UK government
- the German government

For example there was the communication apparently about the blast, “by then-Prime-Minister Elizabeth Truss to Secretary of State Antony Blinken sixty seconds after the detonation”

What is afoot, according to Helmer, is a general NATO government initiative of war against Russia ... making it narrowly about some quasi-rogue US actors, as Hersh does, hides that massive criminal collusion at NATO-government level

<http://johnhelmer.net/whats-wrong-with-the-hersh-report-on-the-nord-stream-attacks/>

With his ‘bin Laden raid’ book, Hersh there perhaps obscures what may well be the truth, that Osama bin Laden actually died a decade earlier, as was reported in a number of sources at the time ... we do know for sure, that a lot of the ‘bin Laden videos’ allegedly ‘found on the Jihadi internet’ by Rita Katz and her dodgy SITE, are fake ... turban and beard, yeah, but different nose etc ... plus videos years apart with the same stack of papers in front of the 'bin Laden' who was apparently played sometimes by an Israeli Arab auto mechanic from Haifa, according to Veterans Today

Quoting from the article:

“Given this reality, I am hardly surprised that for the last three years my own analysis of the origins of Covid has received exactly the same silence. Once again, there is overwhelming circumstantial evidence that the global Covid outbreak was the blowback from a botched biowarfare attack against China (and Iran), an act of absolutely colossal recklessness that has now killed over a million Americans.”

You seem to be implying that intellectual integrity is punished within the current western regime we live under. I agree. So how is it that you believe that it is just a matter of a few exceedingly stupid neocon rogues, who couldn't figure blowback, as responsible for the covid fiasco, as per your theory, could somehow assemble the power to impose that punishment (for the sin of your intellectual integrity) upon you?

Indeed, you are tangling with more than a few exceedingly stupid neocon rogues, no? So where is the part of your theory that addresses why the regime is so smoothly covering for these few exceedingly stupid neocon rogues? But, if instead we conclude that those responsible for the covid fiasco were not rogue, but part and parcel of the overall regime, then indeed we must not excuse the blowback-blindness as the stupidity of a few rogues, no? So then what Unz? You should give it a think. Such thinking will lead somewhere particular. Why not give it a try?

Are you kidding? Daily Sceptic never called COVID a bioweapon, to the contrary they always saw it as a rather mild virus like the flu. They were always against lockdowns and masks and vaccination. It's the complete opposite of your take. The idea that the U.S. was involved in the development and maybe even release of COVID was already widespread in 2020 and 2021.

Also, Hersh is not an “investigative journalist”, he simply receives leaks from the CIA that they want him to publish. It’s usually some obvious truths and some disinformation so they can easily discredit it. His piece on Nordstream is mostly nonsense and has already been debunked:

What gets me is how utterly brainwashed the masses are. How do you deal with this? One feels like a fugitive hiding a secret. I run the biggest sci-fi group on FB, full of conservative white men, proud patriots who loathe liberals and the left, and yet, each of them becomes a rabid dog as soon as you mention Russia. Almost all of them have the Ukrainian flag on their display picture, meanwhile utterly oblivious to the hordes of Indians and Mexicans streaming next door to them.

It is sickening and disheartening to say the least. From one recent article from the daily mail(so called super right wing paper of the masses) here is the highest rated, most agreed with comment:

“As has been said before, Ukraine voted for a comedian and got a leader. The UK votes for a leader and ends up with comedians.

The reason there is no leader like Volodymyr Zelenskiy in the UK is because there is no British politician brave enough to speak some hard truths. It’s all either tepid triangulation or abject lies to cover for catastrophic failings.

Zelenskiy is incredibly skilled and has risen to the challenges in a very impressive way. He clearly has very smart people around him, too.

But in all the out-pouring of praise for Zelenskiy’s rhetorical skills it can be forgotten that the recipe for a successful speech relies on rather simple, basic ingredients. Truth, honesty and clarity of message, unadorned with self-aggrandisement. Just as importantly, know your audience. Each and every one of Zelenskiy’s speeches is tailored to the group listening.

It really isn't that difficult. Empathy, humility, clarity and sincerity.”

Either bury your head in the sand and wait to die or become a full blown hedonist and enjoy this planet and all its vices(which is what I'm doing).

Just like Al Quaida who threatened attacks on US then cheered the attack (911)

It was also

Like PNAC who wanted a Pearl Harbor then the person (Netanyahu) for who they worked at one time celebrated it by saying : It’s good . good for Israel .

All imperial wars are predicated on a lie (or a series of them). Propaganda is a big part in the justification of actions, and also a mask for real motives – interests and power. The "factual" truth of a certain claim (or counter claim) is not the most important issue, although I am not trying to trivialize it. It is the reason for conflicts, clearly outlined in the pattern of history, which is more important. It shows us where we have come from, and more crucially, where we are destined for.

Exactly, and thanks for pointing out and highlight the self-respect aspect of the question, it plays a large role in people that can afford to have it.

As must be repeated over and over, neither the COVID attack on China nor the pipeline attack on Europe were “reckless” in the sense of potentially negative consequences were the goal not achieved. In both cases, the goal has already been achieved, and in neither case was there ever any doubt it wouldn’t be.

As Steve Sailer put it many years ago, the goal is always, “Let’s you and him fight,”

Just as 9-11 was meant to ignite a war against Iraq, COVID was meant to bring the US and China closer to war, and the Nordstream attack was to bring the US and Russia closer to war. Both have been resounding successes and, given the perpetrators’ nearly complete control of the media, there was nothing “reckless” about either.

A few days ago, he dropped a bombshell perhaps as big as anything in his career; reporting the inside story of how the American government had destroyed the Nord Stream energy pipelines, conduits absolutely vital to the European economy.

I don't see it as a bombshell. Anyone with common sense figured on pretty much what Mr. Hersh wrote, without all the details.

This is just as how anyone with common sense saw the Flu Manchu PanicFest for what it really was early on too, nothing but an excuse to implement further Totalitarianism. That one went right over Ron Unz's... watch out!... head.. whoosh ...

“Common sense is not so common” is what they say, but “they” don't give the reason. The reason is that it's not something people are born with. It comes from years of paying attention and thinking critically.

I am loathe to recommend podcasts rather than written words, but Andrew Sullivan's recent interview with Nicholas Wade is very good on this.

Nicholas Wade obviously has both excellent credentials on genetics and bucking the establishment line. He is also a tempered voice with plenty of insight.

Meanwhile, Andrew Sullivan is a highly credible journalist, whom I am sure you can respect and has frequently proven himself capable of independent thought. Furthermore, given that he is HIV+ himself, he has a particular interest and therefore likely knowledge on that subject.

I wonder what you think?

On this issue they exhibit none of the traits that have made them successful in life.

Ron Unz is kind of infatuated with Jeffery Sachs Resume.

Thanks to propaganda masters and his handlers, Jeffery Sachs (with emphasis on “Professor” and “Columbia”) is emerging as a righteous whistleblower, rebel, icon or rogue elephant from the ashes of a disastrous past.

A failed economist, advisor to Boris Yelstin, and the Polish government for his famous belt tightening advice (Slogan of Harvard boys/Brothers) and later fired from his position.

Self proclaimed Chairman of a so-called Covid Commission of a magazine (Lancet) whose members were mostly economists, engineers, politicians, and a librarian. Of course the funding came from the “Generous” contribution of Rockefeller and “Dr”. Bill Gates who always is in the front lines of Vaccines cures (if you are overweight get a vaccine or if you are overjoyed, get a vaccine to make you normal).

Jeffery found shelter in the UN as a Sustainable Czar. An economist not knowing anything about environmental topics.

Then remerged or repackaged (to borrow a phrase from one of the commentators on UNZ site as a whistleblower without feeling the pain of being canceled from social media, bank accounts and fully intact etc..... While the real one suffered consequences.

Now emerging as a political contributor or a covert spokesman of Alphabetical Agencies. I call it infiltrator to popular podcasts like Duran, Russel Brand ... while newly minted credentials. He should stick with his economic models which historically are wrong.

Immediately, after the Nord stream sabotage, most of the independent thinking population had guessed the major culprits with the exception of Norway. Now Jeff is promoting himself that he was told back in October by reliable sources about the major players involved. Sorry, Jeff no one told me but it was obvious to someone like me.

Expect future commentary by Jeffery on Balloons, UFOs, man made earthquakes in Turkey/Syria, Draught in selected countries. He is currently being briefed by the appropriate agencies/journalists.

The most fascinating propaganda (a new one) is that he is first invited to TV shows and during filming abruptly disconnected for maximum propaganda values. Just to promote this outspoken person as a rebel. Why on earth is he selectively invited (thanks to agencies or groups?). Has anyone thought about this new technique to cut Jeffery off and later keep inviting him on a different channels. Why they dont invite likes of Chris Hedges or Scott Ritter, or Doug Macgregor ? who has better qualification than an economist.

I believe that this North Stream essay was a deliberate leak. Who better than to get the message out quickly, effectively and believably, especially inside of ZOG, where people reside in a medicated and whacked out tic-toc pseudo reality, than Hersch. It was “believably” leaked to both US political sides and all of ZOG simultaneously.

There are some damning truths in the essay because there had to be to get the real payload into the elites brains. These truths work the same way Lipid Nanoparticles work to get the mRNA payload into your brain and other organs.

Did Hersch throw Norway under the bus in order to add credibility? Quite possibly. A media boycott of the subject might also be used to add credabilty.

Why was this bombshell released on the Jan 8 and what do they want to cover up or control? Why wasn't the balloon story sufficient, or was the balloon story supposed to divert? Then more Balloons even rumours of aliens.

What has been completely suppressed is the outfitting of drones with chemical weapons.

There are several extremely grisly videos of CW attacks against Russian circulating now. I won't even try to find one.

The first minute of this interview of Scott Ritter below shows Ukrainians manufacturing Chemical Weapons and Drones to carry them.

Watch Video At: <https://youtu.be/Wn9V41asoxx>

Ritter talks about the silence of the UN chemical weapons team, OPCW, while Ukrainians brag about using chemical weapons on Russians. At 6 minutes Ritter gets into the US remaining silent, unlike when they made bogus claims against Syria.

Has the US given Zelensky the green light to use Chemical Weapons against Russia while remaining silent as an act of provocation? Are they covering up their own CW attack while preparing the ground for another false flag?

The article says, “Not only were the attacks an act of war against Germany... ” which (masochist that I am) got me to wondering about the legalisms of territorial waters, injured parties and what not, something likely to be murkier than the murkiest of Baltic waters.

Thankfully, before destroying an excessive number of brain cells, I stumbled upon a piece in the blog of the European Journal of International Law (EJIL), dated October 28, 2022, by Dr. Danae Azaria and Geir Rulfstein.

They eventually boil away any specific country having a territorial “right of self-defense” claim and they can’t determine if the three pipeline attacks over two days reach the necessary threshold of being “specifically targeted,” citing various legalisms.

However, a commenter reminded them that these are attacks of terrorism under statutes of the Lisbon Treaty (under which the European Union is constituted), applicable to the Exclusive Economic Zones (EEZs) of Sweden, Denmark, Germany, and Finland. This is also the EEZ of non-EU member Russia. Aw, what a tangled web we weave!

And I see in my scribbled notes the announcement, “Nordstream AG announced the damages to Nordstream 1 took place in the EEZs of Denmark and/or Sweden.” So, the plot thickens in this pudding of drunken dimwits.

Meanwhile, back in the good ol’ USA, “I can’t believe I’m President” Biden said “They told me not to say anything,” and referred all inquiries to his lawyers at Wood, Dent, Noah, Lott and Sons, who are reviewing the lawsuit filed by Vladimir Putin's attorneys, Gotzha, Bidah, Balz, et al.

There was plenty of strong circumstantial evidence before the Hersh article came out that the US did it. Hersh's article is based upon an unnamed source personally involved in the planning of the event. Unnamed sources cannot be considered wholly reliable. To be believed, Hersh is relying upon his past reputation. And that's Okay. His article is put on top of the heap of circumstantial evidence that already existed. Who really cares whether you can prove something in a court of law. Everyone sitting in their living room should have already known who blew up that pipeline.

But before the Hersh article, any court would view the comments of Biden and Nuland as "admissions".

In my opinion, they want us to know who did it. Even Hersh said that it was to the our advantage that Biden and Nuland shot off their mouths about the incident.

Incidents that this country engaged in that would be considered criminal, and violation of all international norms, are being bragged about by our leaders. Biden bragged about taking the Nordstream down; Trump bragged about assassinating General Solemani.

They used to lie about the criminal things they did. They even went so far to spread disinformation to confuse the issue so no one could find out the truth (eg JFK assassination).

Today, they brag about their criminal acts.

When the election of 2020 was stolen, the victorious ‘resistance’ comported themselves like guilty dogs.

They moved too quickly and too loudly to declare Biden won, before any evidence of fraud had been examined. Message discipline dictated that all stories about the election had to parrot the words “Trump’s unsubstantiated claims” to dismiss the avalanche of evidence.

For theatrical purpose, the regime spent millions to ring the Capitol with National Guard troops for months into 2021. To this day, they are prosecuting the J6’ers Wikileaks style, in a failing attempt to intimidate the masses.

The plotters live in abject fear that the security services will turn on them, just as in Romania or East Germany. The Capitol police were lavished with money, awards and promotions to keep them on side. The undercover feds of J6, like the pipe bomber, are a liability they must hold close with incentives and disincentives, to keep them from blowing the whistle Edward Snowden style.

The regime is a rickety structure of fragile lies, which could topple if people like Sy Hersh keep up the pressure.

Don't be surprised if leftist Democrats and RINO Republicans (both in power) declare Ukraine the 51st state of the union and accuse Russia of attacking the US and immediately start a nuclear war against Russia.

Then after all the death and destruction, they will declare Zelensky the president of the US. The first US president beloved by both Hollywood and the media, and a future recipient of an academy award for his performance on screen and the battlefield- comedian, actor, president.

Americans of all colors have a hard time accepting that Chinese are people, so it's no surprise that they believe such drivel as the "lab leak" theory.

That's some laughable bullshit there. There are 5-10 million Chinese people in America, including a million or more illegals. Most are are accepted pretty well.

Now, how many Americans are accepted in China? How many total White foreigners, I mean, Gweilo ("White Ghosts") are in China?

The Lab Leak theory makes by far the most common sense, but then, as I wrote, common sense is not so common. The Chinese are known for shoddy work and poor Q/A. The labs were run per 2-levels down safety standards. I've been there and seen it. Whaddya' think might happen?

I read through that debunking, and my takeaway was that Alexander picked a lot of nits, but failed to “blow holes” in Hersh’s basic story. My problem with Seymour Hersh is that, while he points the finger in the right direction, he is at best sensationalistic and sloppy, and at worst a tool or dupe of the bombers, delivering a limited hangout to obscure and manage the truth.

Not only were the attacks an act of war against Germany, one of our closest NATO allies, but the explosions probably produced the greatest peacetime destruction of civilian infrastructure in the history of the world, with the value of the $30 billion pipelines being far larger than the losses inflicted by the 9/11 attacks.

I think this is overblown.

Those pipelines are over 700 miles long while the damaged parts are what, a few hundred feet long? The broken sections can be repaired, as the Russians have claimed (the internal corrosion stories are BS), it would take a few months to have all four pipelines operative.

So the damage is way less than $30 billion, it's more like a few million. Not a big deal, really.

As my previous comment on this subject mentions, Hersh's article has fueled some none-too-subtle retconning on the NordStreams.

I can't be the only one to remember that both NordStream I and then the planned NordStream II were green-lighted by the Obama administration and officially declared a non-subject of interest throughout Obama's two disastrous terms.

Yes, there was activity behind the curtain, occasionally visible in the media in the context of the geopolitics of energy pipelines. In particular, over whether the EU would ultimately have any control over these flows directly from Russia to Germany, but never anything as to how the NordStreams cohered with US and NATO policy re Russia.

It was only after Trump took the oath, and singlehandedly belabored that the US was bearing the loin's share of the burden to defend Germany against Russia while Germany was making itself whole dependent on cheap energy from Russia. Needless to add, Trump put this in the context of trade, not bellicosity toward Russia much less preparing for WWIII.

We can add in the earlier Merkel/Hollande confessions to the retconning.

The sabotage of the NordStreams represents the breaking point between US and German sovereign objectives that have been diverging since 1991. Everyone seems to think it's some great revelation that the illegitimate Biden regime began planning to blow up the pipelines a couple of months before Russia kicked off its SMO. Unless I miss my mark, those have been in the can for many years.

Trump was vilified for being “transactional” in a bilateral manner with foreign powers. As if, behind the curtain, it isn’t always horse-trading, with the only question being whether the parties are acting in their national interest and that of their citizenry.

Obama declared himself a “citizen of the world” and everyone thought that cute. To this very moment, even considering what ‘Black Jesus’ has wrought is verboten.

Well, I don't have any expertise in pipeline engineering issues, but there were very widespread media reports that the flood of seawater would fatally corrode the pipelines after a couple of months, rendering them permanently unusable, which is what I'd been assuming. If that's wrong and the pipelines are easily repairable, then I'm mistaken.

Well, I'll admit getting Harvard tenure at age 28, quite possibly being the youngest such person in history, is the sort of achievement that does impress me.

But I was also very impressed that the chairman of the Covid Commission was willing to denounce the official story as a whitewash and a government cover-up. Did the chairman of the Warren Commission ever do that? Or the chairman of the 9/11 Commission?

And some of Sachs' public remarks on Covid and on the Nord Stream pipeline attacks got many millions of views, getting them out to a global audience that otherwise probably never would have heard anything other than the official MSM narrative. I regard that as a very significant achievement.

Sure, the western media will exaggerate how serious the attack was. The facts are thus:

- 1) NSI and NSII extend for about 770 miles.
- 2) The broken sections are small and can be repaired in a short time frame (5 mo) as stated by the Russians (Aleksandr Novak) and a Danish engineer (Sten Ussing), and the repair will cost in the order of 50 million US$.
- 3) Corrosion is very slow at the bottom of the Baltic due to physicochemical parameters,
- 4) The pipes are made of 48 inch steel, have an internal coating to speed up gas flow, external coating to fight off corrosion and external cement coating for weight.
- 5) The whole system has been mothballed by Gazprom and will remain ready to repair and operate whenever conditions are favourable.

And neither had Saddam Hussein been on the run for months before he was nabbed. The story they spread was that the wily fox was too elusive for the stalwart US forces chasing him. Literally escaping their pursuit by a hairsbreadth, fleeing just moments before the footfall of his pursuers.

And then the reality. This disheveled, begrizzled stumble bum staggers out from under a concrete slab with a full retinue of news cameras as audience, dutifully recording the event for the public's delectation.

As usual, simply invert what the media says to arrive at the truth. If they say he is a wily fox running free, then in actuality, he is a drugged-out zombie prisoner kept in a dungeon. If they say he has popped out of his hole, then they have dragged him out into the light of day. If they say "after having been put on trial for crimes against humanity" they mean "to be executed when he is of no further use and we deem it convenient (of maximum propaganda value) to do so".

Yes, Hersch is no Jewish saint, he's just more famous at it than the other Jewish propaganda hacks.

The only real question now is why reveal this information at this present time (we should assume its essential veracity in this case)? Why now?

It could be the defense establishment is split on the issue? Not really likely. And not in today's cuck obedience climate.

It could be that its a political device by the Democrats to bring down an unwinnable Biden (and Ho' Harris) pre-election? No, not really, its too heavy for that; other more trivial things could easily be invoked.

It could be that it is considered that it is better, and best, that it be revealed at this specific stage? That is now rather than at some uncertain point in a 'random' future. This is really most likely.

What this means, like we didn't really already know, is that something really big is coming down the highway, and we don't need this pesky pipeline crap getting in the way later to trip us up. "Let's gut the pig now, and its actually part of the plan that we do."

Cos, we ain't gonna win against China.

For example:

Like a scenario where there is a deliberate imminent collapse of a newly digitised and locked-down United States, a simultaneous and open shitting on Western Europe and NATO, similarly newly digitised and locked-down, and where ‘the’ Jewish DeepState money jumps ship and lionises, supports and finances forever globally a soon to be triumphant Putin and Xi NWO combo as rulers of the new center of total Jewish power.

Thanks Seymour, great work.

Epoxy, one of the true miracle chemicals of our age, is impervious to a whole host of liquids.

From engineering toolbox:

“Epoxy (polyepoxide) is an epoxide polymer that cures when mixed with a catalyzing agent or “hardener”. Epoxy resin have an excellent electrical, thermal, and chemical resistance. It is common to increase the strength of epoxy with fibrous reinforcement or mineral fillers. The variety of combinations of epoxy resins and reinforcements provides a wide latitude in properties obtainable in molded parts.

As for me "promoting" Ron's position on COVID origins, it's actually Ron who is promoting me. I was saying essentially the same thing in late January and early February 2020, months before Ron published his first article on the topic. I called attention to the ABC News "smoking gun" on FFWN shortly after it came out, and kept talking about it on the radio. So naturally I was supportive when Ron took up the issue and did such an excellent job putting together a powerful comprehensive argument. Anyone who doesn't recognize the excellence of Ron's work on this topic is not very good at evaluating arguments.

They used to use two-part Epoxy by the Concrete Truck-load when back-filling vertical shafts in preparation for the testing of Nuclear Devices at the Nevada Test Site.

When things would go wrong in terms of timing, the Epoxy would cook-off in the barrel and the load would have to be scrapped.

There were lots of Concrete Truck Barrels scattered over the desert on the NTS with hardened Epoxy inside them.

Right, Levtraro.

I read quite a bit about these pipelines as I was writing in on a Lawdog forum page, in which the site owner reckoned this could have been poor maintenance and some hydrate plug breaking free and busting a hole in it (them). On that, first of all, I never understood how the plug could have any serious impact loading without anything but very large radii bends in these things. Secondly, anything accidental like this based on poor quality is not at all likely to happen within the same day in 2 or 3 separate places.

I'm pretty impressed by engineering projects like this. BTW, one stupid claim that people on who knows which political side of the question of this sabotage have was that this blow-out was a blow to the planet! Haha. I decided to do a few calculations on that, and that's when I looked up more info. on the dimensions, planned volumetric flow rate, etc. See Nord Stream Climate Calamity™? and Nord Stream Climate Calamity™

But I was also very impressed that the chairman of the Covid Commission was willing to denounce the official story as a whitewash and a government cover-up. Did the chairman of the Warren Commission ever do that?A Or the chairman of the 9/11 Commission?

The fallacy embodied in this is enough to reduce the credibility of your comment to nil. Even assuming the latter chairmen had anything to denounce that an honest account would have denounced but didn't Sachs's appointment to what you call "the Covid Commission" had little or nothing that was relevant in common. It was appointment to a private organisation where he found himself embedded in a crew of self interested conspirators for whom he was probably hoped to be a patsy. Having swallowed the insult how could he have not expressed his outrage?

Ron,

The Feb. 19 <https://rageagainstawar.com/> rally is sending shock waves through the anti-establishment communities since it's inception. The effort to unite "left" & "right" elements against war has caused rifts everywhere. Some are aghast at sharing a stage with Libertarians (calling them racist etc.) while the Libertarian splitters condemn their chairman for aligning with commie tankies, etc. It's pretty wild. And interesting.

Meanwhile, the stalwarts (Chris Hedges, Garland Nixon, David Swanson, et al) press on. The speakers now include Ron Paul, Dennis Kucinich, and Tulsi Gabbard. On a topic close to your heart, hear is Tulsi on Feb.9 addressing the House Weaponization of the Federal Government Committee about censorship, shadow-banning, etc.

Any thoughts how the Nord Stream destruction ties in with the recent media push against natural gas usage by Americans (most notable in the context of gas stoves, but also proposed bans on new connections in some places. and shutting down NG power plants)?

Also. how does this tie in with the expansion of LNG exports in the US? Hard to believe LNG exports from the lower 48 states only started in February 2016. Capacity is now up to about 10 billion cubic feet per day (Bcf/d).

<https://www.eia.gov/todayinenergy/detail.php?id=50598>

Total US consumption is about 80 Bcf/d so that is a significant portion of total usage.

<https://www.ceicdata.com/en/indicator/united-states/natural-gas-consumption>

Based on this it looks like actual exports are over 10 Bcf/d.

<https://www.statista.com/statistics/1164828/united-states-lng-monthly-exports>

Interesting to ponder how this might relate to increasing natural gas prices this winter.

One fascinating aspect of this is that LNG is not exactly a win for the environment because of leakage during the process as well as the energy costs of conversion and shipping. Yet “environmentalists” scream about gas use in the US and ignore LNG.

2017 paper

US liquefied natural gas (LNG) exports: Boom or bust for the global climate?

https://www.energy.gov/sites/default/files/2022-10/23.%20US%20LNG%20exports%20boom%20or%20bust%20ofor%20the%20global%20climate ds.pdf

Our hybrid lifecycle-energy strategy analysis, based on both emissions estimates and likely market effects, indicates that exporting LNG is likely to increase global greenhouse gas emissions. While uncertainty remains, methane leakage, additional energy demand, and decreased domestic coal displacement have the very real potential to undermine any prospective climate benefit in the long term. LNG exports lead to increased short-term climate emissions in most scenarios. Only with favorable assumptions which conflict with the energy strategies and needs of importing countries are there net climate benefits from LNG exports.

A good page for US natural gas statistics.

<https://www.eia.gov/naturalgas/monthly/>

In November 2022 the US used 92.6 Bcf/d and NET NG exports were 10.3 Bcf/d (gross 18.5 Bcf/d). Keep in mind that almost all US natural gas imports are by pipeline from Canada.

<https://www.eia.gov/energyexplained/natural-gas/imports-and-exports.php>

Nice plot of imports and exports from 1950-2021 at that link.

The US exports about 7 Bcf/d to Mexico by pipeline.

With a Pulitzer Prize and five George Polk awards, Hersh certainly ranks as one of the most renowned reporters of the last half-century, known for breaking the stories of the My Lai Massacre, the Abu Ghraib prison, and other landmarks of investigative journalism.

Hersh also broke the story of the circumstances around the killing of Osama Bin Laden, who Hersh claims was in Pakistani custody for years before one of their military officials voluntarily revealed Bin Laden's location.

As we all know here, Bin Laden was not actually responsible for 9/11; it was the Israeli Mossad.

Earlier, Hersh wrote about the hidden battle between the Kennedy administration and Israel over the latter country's nuclear program. Kennedy insisted that they abandon their project to develop nuclear weapons, and this outraged David Ben-Gurion, which eventually led him to resign as prime minister.

This clearly was the motivation for Israel to participate in the conspiracy to assassinate Kennedy.

At this moment, the facts are not yet settled regarding Seymour Hersh's journalistic account, and perhaps his story will prove to have been mistaken. But given the past pattern of similar examples that I have carefully investigated, I think there is an excellent chance that his narrative will turn out to be large correct.

Once again, there is overwhelming circumstantial evidence that the global Covid outbreak was the blowback from a botched biowarfare attack against China (and Iran), an act of absolutely colossal recklessness that has now killed over a million Americans.

If the U.S. was willing to inflict so much pain on one of its own allies, then it supports the plausibility of the U.S. launching a major attack on China.

Could the countries currently in the E.U. at some point join an alliance with Russia? This would protect them from U.S. attacks on their infrastructure, and also would safeguard those countries from future inundation of sub-Saharan African migrants.

Sure, that's a perfectly valid criticism and frankly I often have to grit my teeth with embarrassment as I try to figure out a way to shoehorn my Covid origins analysis into the end of an article that's only somewhat related.

But the problem is that until just the last few weeks, I'd spent nearly three years as virtually the only person on the entire Internet regularly advocating and promoting the Covid biowarfare hypothesis. Moreover, just days after I'd published my original April 2020 article, our entire website had been banned by Facebook and deranked by Google, making it much more difficult to disseminate those ideas. Youtube shadow-bans controversial Covid videos and nearly all the podcasters are too fearful of being deplatformed to go near the topic.

So the only real means I have of getting my analysis into further circulation is to have it hitch a ride on some of the other articles I wrote. For example, my Covid video interviews will probably pick up another 40-50,000 views today because I included them at the bottom. So for another 50K views in one day I just grit my teeth and go ahead.

I used to think that also, but now I'm not so sure after subscribing to Rolo Slavskiy's Substack. (Some of Rolo's essays have also appeared on TUR). He seems to have a lot of insider knowledge that things aren't going nearly as well for Russia as claimed by pro-Russia cheerleaders like Col. MacGregor, Scott Ritter, and the two Alex's at the Duran. The much-anticipated Winter Offensive has yet to materialize, and Russia hasn't secured the Donbass (which is now supposedly Russian territory) after a year of fighting.

Slavskiy is decidedly pro-Russia, but points out that there is much dissention inside the Kremlin due to Putin's go-slow approach, which has led to the unnecessary deaths of many Russian soldiers. Per Slavskiy and others, Putin should have put Russia on a war footing months ago. He still hasn't done so.

He also states, contra the the cheerleaders listed above, that Ukraine's army remains larger than the one Russia has so far assembled inside Ukraine. I don't know where the truth lies, but I'm beginning to think that this war is hardly a cake walk for Russia and could wind up being a long war, which could lead to the fall of Putin if he doesn't seriously ramp up the pressure on the Zelenskyyy regime.

IF there were copious evidence that both ZOG and the Russians had been cooperating in conducting joint explosives testing in the immediate vicinity of Nordstream.

Not really. The Pekar study from last year showed that the initial outbreak began far away from the lab, around the wet market on the other side of the huge city. This isn't consistent with the theory that the virus accidentally leaked out of the lab. If that had happened, then the earliest cases would've been concentrated near the lab.

Same with ethanol, a net expender of energy. Takes more to produce a Btu than to consume it. Plus, burning food for fuel??? Once an idea gets stuck in a Big Gov fan or Long Green lines the pockets, anything can be rationalized or excused.

LNG takes a lot of energy to liquefy and then to RE-GASIFY so that it is usable. It adds considerably to the cost.

All one needs to recognize, is the big yawn from Congress. This is going nowhere. Vicky Nuland rejoicing with Ted Cruz about the pile of scrap metal, instead of Republicans foaming at the mouth about “the Constitution” would be a good start for confirmation. However, let’s do a little more poking:

– William Burns with his 2007 “Nyet means nyet” memo leads to 2008 NATO in Bucharest inviting Ukraine to join NATO. Why would that happen unless you wanted war?

– The 2008 Color Revolution in Ukraine fizzles, because of the battle among politicians over who gets to steal more. That makes the 2014 coup a necessity.

– Condi Rice in 2014 <https://rumble.com/v1m5010-condoleezza-rice-nord-stream-cover-in-2014.html> post coup.

– German government refusing to okay completed Nord Stream 2, which was an initiative of German businesses.

This war has been in the works since Putin decided to take on the oligarchs, just as WWI and WWII took years to manipulate. It’s all about the Benjamins for the psychopaths in charge.

| As Steve Sailer put it many years ago, the goal is always, “Let’s you and him fight,”

The expression comes not from Steve Sailer, but from the American Popeye cartoon series, originally created by E.C. Segar.

Let’s You and Him Fight was the title of a 1934 Popeye cartoon short, and became one of hamburger-loving J. Wellington Wimpy’s stock one-liners.

King Features, Thimble Theater, E.C. Segar, July 15, 1935

| Just as 9-11 was meant to ignite a war against Iraq

Well, I dunno. There was never any evidence Saddam or Iraq had anything to do with 9/11. Remember George Tenet’s kneejerk analysis: “This has bin Laden’s fingerprints all over it.”

Graphic: The Times of London

After failing to smoke or bomb bin Laden out of his alleged Tora Bora bat cave deep in the Hindu Kush, despite this wonderful illustration from Blighty, Pres. George W. Bush used patently phony and obviously forged Niger Yellowcake documents in his 2003 SOTU Address to justify bombing Iraq.

Not a single one of those lying sacks of shit in the George W. Bush administration has ever been held to account for their reckless attack on Iraq or their “a sea of lies” used to justify it, and as we've seen, reckless acts may be most dangerous and devastating when they are successful.

Back in the 1960s before various media were devoured by corporate conglomerates, the many independent news and magazine outlets competed to be first with blockbuster stories. Sights and sounds of fighting in Viet Nam appeared on the evening news by reporters near front lines.

Controversy and uncomfortable realities were at or near the surface of daily life as the family gathered around the living room TV in the evening and passed around the daily paper at the breakfast table.

Nowadays, we can access many fantastic and important stories through internet searching, but it is as separated entities that then try to message one another. The chorus of “Oh, my God, what just happened? You gotta see this!” by a family within arms reach of one another is now a screen message: OMGWJHYGST!

Project Mockingbird, government secrecy, and corporate conniving were at work back then, but wasn't all-encompassing, and so near to all-controlling as it is today.

@Chebyshev

| The Lab Leak theory makes by far the most common sense

| Not really. ...If that had happened, then the earliest cases would've been concentrated near the lab.

I think what's being suggested isn't that it leaked accidentally, but that rather it was deliberately designed and released in a controlled and specific way to suit ZOG's agendas.

My theory is that ZOG was enthusiastic about moving manufacturing out of the U.S. because of course they want to destroy white America, duh.

But then they were caught off guard when China's ascendancy lead to complications and inconveniences, most notably China muscling in on their scam; the Total surveillance and data collection of all Americans and everybody else, as an way of selling data in the trillions, and also as an Orwellian tool of subjugation and power. Two things extremely close to the black heart of ZOG, and for which, it doesn't take a genius to know, they'd like to have (insist on) a monopoly on it.

The arrest of the Huawei executive and hand-wringing over TikTok and other Chinese 'affronts', are based on that ZOG anger, like a gangster seeing a rival bootlegger.

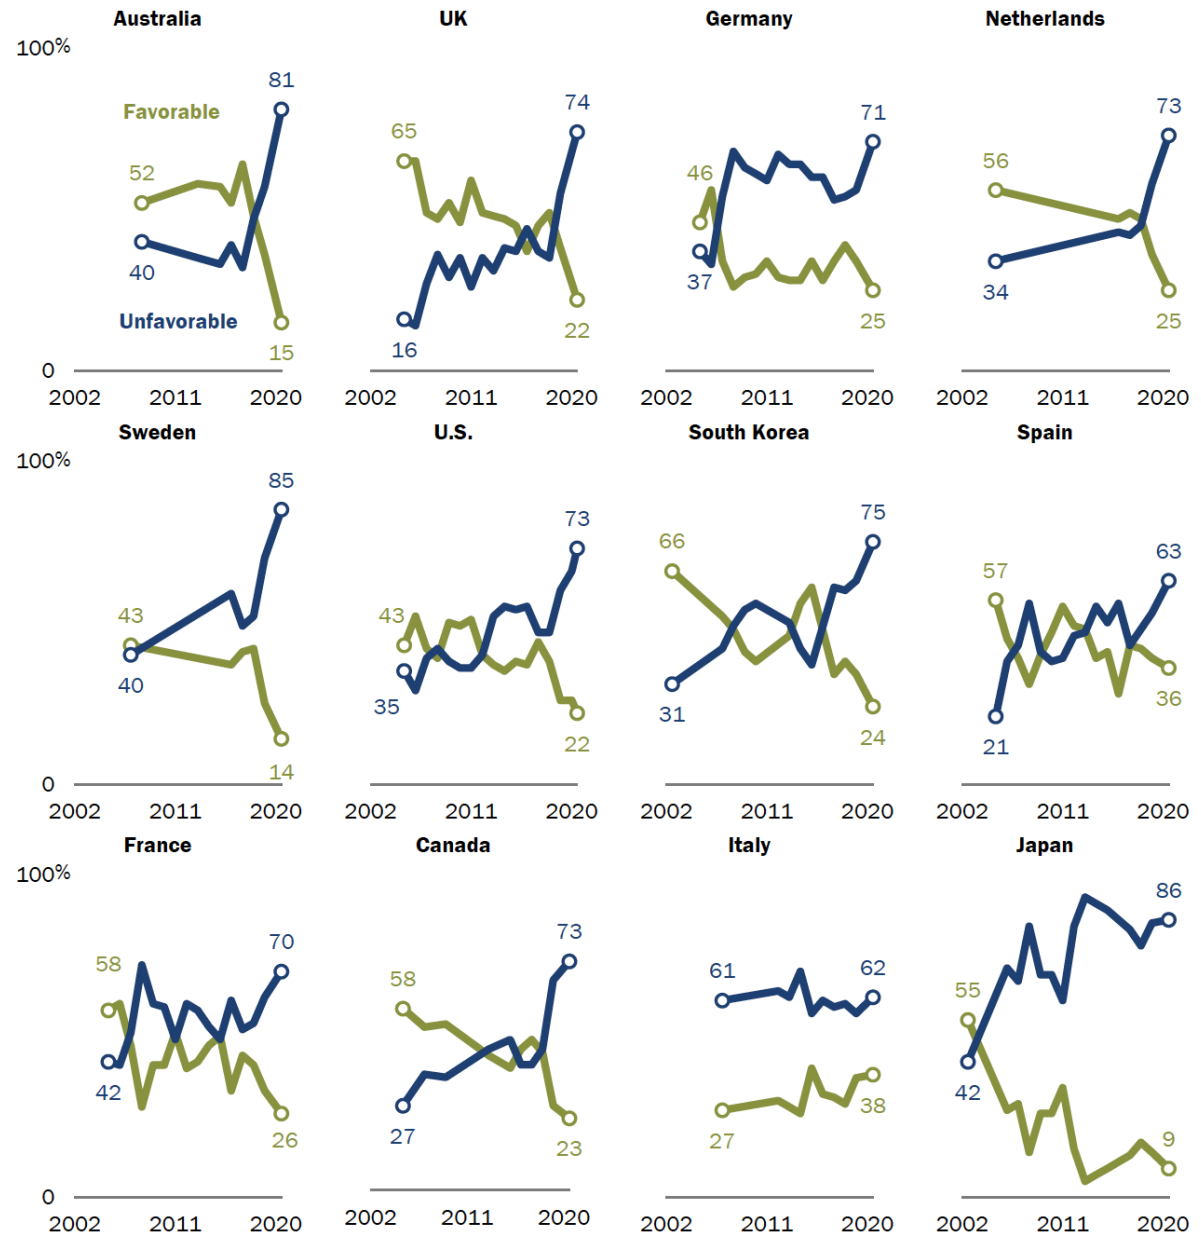

So the hysteria kicks in. And Covid was just too convenient. Not only to use against China, but to get rid of Trump, and bolster their petty tyrannies all over ZOG's fiefdom.

here's a nice graph that shows the sheople's feelings towards China in ZOG-land. Only a fool doesn't understand by now, that these people think and feel exactly what ZOG wants them to think and feel.

Increasingly negative evaluations of China across advanced economies

% who have a(n) ___ view of China

Note: Belgium and Denmark not surveyed prior to 2020. In Italy, 2020 data from telephone surveys; prior data from face-to-face surveys. Those who did not answer are not shown.

Source: Summer 2020 Global Attitudes survey, Q8b.

"Unfavorable Views of China Reach Historic Highs in Many Countries"

PEW RESEARCH CENTER

China or any nation could have committed heinous acts of terror and war against the United States and her people. It could have flown jets into buildings, slaughtering thousands of Americans in fireballs, and 90+% percent of the American people would believe exactly what they were told to believe by the media.

So China could have done 9/11, and then instead of blame, could have gotten sympathy instead, and have the whole thing blamed on Iran or Russia or whomever, just by having the media on their side, which is exactly what happened when Israel did 9/11, and then sent the American people to Iraq to kill and die.

If ZOG's vassals all now hate China, then that is because ZOG wants them to.

Is there anyone here who doubts that?

And since it's clear, (especially by that chart), that ZOG's minions now hate China, I think it's obvious that ZOG wanted them to, and not because of any of the reasons we're being told.

As I said, I think ZOG is pissed at China for competing with ((Big Tech)), in vacuuming up everyone's data and Internet searches and emails and social media and microphones in their cars and television remotes and GPS data and everything you say and everything you write, in order to create a massive database that will usher in an Orwellian hell on earth that could only buoy ZOG's black heart to beyond ebullience.

And the last thing they want is competition from a nation and regime that does not share their same goals and pursuits. Made all the more obvious and problematic by China's refusal to get on the ZOG boat vis-a-vis Russia.

So that is my analysis, (such as it is) of the tectonic geopolitical plates colliding into each other, creating the strife and stress, perhaps analogous to the surface of the earth, rending and ripping and colliding into itself, in that terrible tragedy in Turkey/Syria.

Like the Earth's mantle, so too human forces collide and rend and bring to bear massive under-the-surface forces, which have their way of bursting forth.

@Ron Unz

Sorry to disagree with you on the credibility of Covid Commission formed by a magazine. How would people feel if Golf magazine (like Lancet magazine) formed a commission funded by the CIA (like Rockefeller and Bill Gates generous contribution)to investigate pipeline sabotage making Sara Palin as the chairwoman and she started issuing gas public statements. I would not listen to a single word she utter on the topic and especially when most of the commission members have no clue of the topic they are supposed to investigate.

Look at Joe Biden. Is he qualified to function as president? The guy has difficulty differentiating between his wife and his sister (during campaign).

Being from Harvard or MIT is no guarantee to be smart. Believe me I have worked with engineering graduates and have been treated by a doctor who are dumb as a stump. In one of your articles you had talked about the Ivy league colleges, if my memory serves me,. I thought it was well researched work.

For example, Alan Dershowitz is a hyped up character who is fool enough to believe that Americans are dumb enough to buy his story of having massages (no sex) from under age girls While fully aware of the Epstein and Ghislaine Maxwell sex network. He really thinks that people would buy this, if so then I have a bridge to sell.

Such overrated characters coming from a subculture of elites also exploit their status for power and money. Lot of Americans are not aware of his famous case of his brother-in-law against the NY Post office. Where in Midtown Manhattan the brother-in-law had an accident while driving around the standing post office vehicle (not parked). The celebrity attorney won a few millions for his brother-in-law without going to trial thanks to Alan's social status.

What little I know about Ron Unz is that he has a background in statistics, a successful investor, who also believes in openness and transparency. But it is hard to imagine someone with such a background failing to see that people like Jeffery Sachs are promoted or shoved into the public throat as an icon, a genius, or using adjectives like Rogue elephant.

His social and financial accounts being intact while he is blowing the whistle on establishment. And the circus of being cut off from broadcasts in the middle of his statement. Pure circus to elevate the whistleblower. Who is pushing for his appearances in the mainstream media while genuine whistleblowers doing time in jails.

After reading one of your articles about him I curiously googled him and was surprised to see his name as chairman of UN Sustainable commission. Never heard that name when I worked with the UN on Environmental issues.

It's interesting that Hersh's reporting on MH-17 hasn't come up much in the wake of his reporting on Nordstream.

They are awfully similar, both in parties, subject matter, and epistemic set-up. He reports, based on sources, what anyone with a three-digit IQ should be able to figure out for themselves is the most probable explanation for an important event. Then everyone calls him crazy/dishonest/whatever. Then silence descends.

Psychotic Break says:

The only real question now is why reveal this information at this present time (we should assume its essential veracity in this case)? Why now?

Answer:

NOW America has lost Ukraine after spending so many billions of dollars.

Russians told the world that they can live trading with rest of the world without North America and Western Europe; but, the Western Europeans will need to re-adjust their annual budgets to higher energy-prices.

That's all.

Higher energy-prices for Western Europe is not a big deal for America.

Russians cannot allow Ukraine to go back and re-fuel for re-attacking the Russian Federation again just as Ukraine did right after signing the Minsk Agreement almost a decade ago.

There is no rush for ending the ongoing Ukraine saga on the Russian part.

America and Western Europe are on the rush to end the Ukraine fiasco for both political and economic reasons.

My above comments answer your question “Why now?”.

Thanks, at least we are talking about now 'why'. Your answer is too tame.

For it to be right it would mean there was a plan by the Pentagon (the leakers of the dossier) to simultaneously burn Biden, Blinken, Sullivan and Nuland, (the entire US State Department), i.e. launch a civil war. Many might hope you are right in a way, but its highly unlikely.

You need to separate out America from the great people of America and their ZOG rulers. They want completely different outcomes.

Chinese communism was a jewish ideology just like modern day woke 'liberal' communism is a jewish ideology; in fact they are identical.

According to extreme jewish ideology one of the the ultimate objectives of judaism is the destruction and annihilation of Edom. Edom is white, anglo-saxon, Christianity. The jews are succeeding with their plan supremely.

Steve Sailer was the first, as I recall, to apply the line to contemporary politics. It rang true then as a description of Talmudic political machinations, and remains so.

You are correct that the criminals in the Bush administration responsible for facilitating 9-11 were never brought to justice. Doug Feith, Paul Wolfowitz, Richard Perle, and the other Khazar Jews responsible for murdering 3,000 Americans walked away scot free thanks to their complicit co-ethnics in the media and intelligence communities.

The fact that there is video of George Bush being told about the attacks while sitting on a tiny chair reading a children's book to a kindergarten class is an unmistakable Talmudic flourish too malignant to originate with actual humans.

And, as you know, the war against Iraq was already in the works on the day of the attack. Netanyahu said as much that very day in a speech to a university audience.

Stop trying to figure it out. Karl Rove said it best:

“We’re an empire now, and when we act, we create our own reality. And while you’re studying that reality — judiciously, as you will — we’ll act again, creating other new realities, which you can study too, and that’s how things will sort out. We’re history’s actors . . . and you, all of you, will be left to just study what we do.”

1. They weren't going to ne supplying Germany with gas for the foreseeable future anyway

2. Repairs would cost an amount which wasn't huge on the scale of the costs of the war they had launched

3.Supply would continue anyway through Ukraine to those who would go on paying, like Hungary and Serbia

4.If the Germans could be made to believe the US had done it that would be a huge win.

I have an engineering/technical background, which I'm sure goes farther than yours, Mr. Marx. I've also been to China 11 times – what have you done over there besides just going to museums and all kinds of technical shit like that?

Yes, Apple engineers in America make the specs for FoxConn. You do bring up a point that I discussed in the post Cheap China-Made Crap – who's responsible?. Yes, if you specify crap, you get crap. However, there's a lot more to it on the China side. You may want to check a book called Poorly Made in China. That link goes to a Peak Stupidity review, so you can see whether it's worth reading for you. I know you don't want to learn anything though... I'm trying.

My experience with a company that made (maybe still does make), of all things, the stupid Flu Manchu era face masks, back in '09, gave me a number of stories about Chinese workmanship and poor Q/A. I'll give them credit for a lean/mean operation – only 8 office workers out of about 200 employees. The boss was purposely selling face masks without the filter material to customers in the Chinese market.* “Gotta’ save some money.” Then, there were the returned goods from Germany – one 40’ container with ~ a million pieces – that she tried to sell to a Mexican company. Turns out the Mexican buyer riding with them in the van knew Chinese! Who does that?!

The problem is with attitude and also flat-out corruption. They don't care much what happens once sales are made – zero integrity. Then too, they'll buy cheaper and worse parts than what was specified in order to pocket the monetary difference – again, zero integrity.

Now, I give credit where credit is due. I was very impressed with the amazing big infrastructure projects, even in far out-of-the-way places. See A Peak Stupidity apology to our Chinese readers.

I guess you pride yourself in stuffing as many insults as you can into one comment. The problem is your insults suck- they are like cheap Chinese knock-offs. Did you collect them all from a website somewhere, because I haven't heard “pipsqueak” since the 1970s, and “Forward Baggege!” might be an insult in a parallel universe, as I've never heard it.

So, go take a long walk off a short pier, you Jive Turkey!

(Due to my love of Rockford Files re-runs, I'm trying hard to bring the insult “turkey” back into common usage. Or should that be “Jive Türkiye” now?)

And, thanks, Veracity.

The Germans must turn a screw or turn the screw and get a nuke and then screw out from beneath the American Empire.

The JEW/WASP Ruling Class of the American Empire is abolishing Germany and it is abolishing the USA and the JEW/WASP Ruling Class of the American Empire is using mass legal immigration and mass illegal immigration as demographic weapons to attack and destroy the European Christian ancestral core of the USA.

Germany must order the JEW/WASP Ruling Class of the American Empire to vacate its military occupation of Germany and Germany must turn the screw and become a nuclear weapons power nation with the ballistic missile means to deliver nuclear weapons globally.

Chebyshev, for you and Mr. Kim both: None of what you each wrote negates my common sense point at all. Maybe it's me, but I am under the impression "Lab Leak" does not mean some fluid containing viral material leaking under a door frame. It's a general expression meaning it got out by accident.

Whether it's across the city doesn't matter. Someone who violated the rules* walked out infected. I don't know how contagious the virus was in the beginning – there was so much speculation and lying about that, as we should all remember. I don't know how much of the path of contagion the Chinese "authorities" can recreate, and how much truth they would tell about it anyway.

* In response to Kim Jong II on that, I don't know the details on what you mentioned, but is that not basically poor Q/A People walked out of the labs infected with the virus. That's not good. That was a safety and Q/A problem.

[NB. No 'reply' button. In response to Vito Klein's comment #163...]

| Steve Sailer was the first, as I recall, to apply the line to contemporary politics.

Let's hope Sailer gave credit to E.C. Segar, Popeye or Wimpy; otherwise, his use of the expression is plagiarism.

It wouldn't surprise me, as Steve Sailer doesn't strike me as a particularly original thinker, who additionally sometimes gets even simple facts entirely wrong. I quit commenting over there as Sailer's habit of holding up my comments in moderation for hours on end did not endear him to me. It's a big time-saver no longer dealing with his conceited whims. I'm too old and my time is too valuable to waste it farting around with dipshits like Sailer.

| You are correct that the criminals in the Bush administration responsible for facilitating 9-11 were never brought to justice. Doug Feith, Paul Wolfowitz, Richard Perle, and the other Khazar Jews responsible for murdering 3,000 Americans walked away scot free thanks to their complicit co-ethnics in the media and intelligence communities.

I'm even more correct than that. Feith, Wolfowitz, and Perle were not in charge on 9/11 but Bush, Cheney, and Rumsfeld were.

Still, it's a nice plan you have to put the blame on the assistants without even mentioning the people in charge.

| The fact that there is video of George Bush being told about the attacks while sitting on a tiny chair reading a children's book to a kindergarten class is an unmistakable Talmudic flourish too malignant to originate with actual humans

Histrionics aside, the significant thing about the scene at Booker is not the window dressing, but rather the fact Bush sat glued to his chair for about seven minutes after supposedly being informed by Andrew Card that “America is under attack.”

Bush, of course, subsequently lied about watching a plane crash into the WTC on TV before being “whisked away” to see the kids, who were 2nd graders, not kindergartners, and wasn’t that about the worst English class you’ve ever suffered through?

And, as you know, the war against Iraq was already in the works on the day of the attack.

Why then didn’t the 9/11 plotters pretend that the phony Arab hijackers were Iraqis? And why didn’t CIA chief Tenet jump up and exclaim: “This has Saddam’s fingerprints all over it!”?

It was President George W. Bush who somehow shifted the focus of American aggression from Osama to Saddam:

Twenty years after the al-Qaida attack [sic] on September 11, 2001, the United States is still involved in a war in Iraq that it started. President George W. Bush was obsessed with the Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein and deliberately misled the American people about who was responsible for the 9/11 attack.[...]

Consequently, the United States went to war in Iraq on a false pretense that it was somehow avenging those killed by al-Qaida. A Washington Post poll conducted two years after 9/11 dramatically illustrated the story: 69% of Americans at the time believed Saddam Hussein was “personally” involved in the 9/11 attack. Even more staggering, 82% believed Saddam provided assistance to Osama bin Laden. Both were utterly false.

@cohen

I have first hand knowledge of the disastrous advice of Jeffery Sachs advice to President Yeltsin of economic atrocity in Russia and in Poland. My neighbors were Russian immigrant who described in details how Jeffery's advice caused starvation in many communities. I have visited Russia five times and have learned a lot from locals what I could not find in US. Terrible conditions to live in Russia in 90s.

I don't think you're judging Sachs fairly.

Frankly, until last year I only had a slight impression of him, vaguely remembering that he'd been a central figure in the Russian privatization disaster under Yeltsin and having also read Naomi Klein's book, in which he's portrayed as a leading Neoliberal villain.

However, he's come across as very sincere in the interviews in which he himself raised the Russian disaster issue, and I'd hardly be surprised if my very limited familiarity with the history was mistaken. Obviously, the Russians themselves know the facts of the matter best and they widely despise and hate Yeltsin and the crooked Oligarchs and foreign carpet-baggers whom he empowered and enriched. But their leadership seems to treat Sachs himself in a very friendly and respectful manner, which tends to support his account of events.

I think I've disputed Sachs with you once or twice before, so I doubt I'll change your mind. But for anyone else interested, here's a link to my lengthy, very laudatory discussion of his recent activities and also his interview on Democracy Now!, in which he specifically addresses his 1990s involvement in Russia. Offhand, he strikes me as very sincere, but others can judge for themselves:

So now what? We have a bill of indictment for undeclared US war by illegal means (inter alia sabotage at sectoral scale and banned biological weapons with systematic and widespread medical experimentation by ulterior constraint and coercion.) In manifest breach of the UN Charter. The US government has made itself hostis humani generis in law, the universal enemy.

But since the command structure in Langley has impunity in municipal law, the bedrock US legal responsibility to prosecute or extradite is disabled. The complementarity principle comes into play: in any jurisdiction on earth, it's open season on US officials. If the US command structure still can't be stopped, legal dispute resolution gives way to war. That's the point Russia made by invoking Article 51. Once war is on, the indiscriminate and disproportionate character of the US sneak attacks justifies nuclear strikes in historical precedent (Hiroshima and Nagasaki were explicit US responses to Japan's breach of Hague III.)

At this point, you are asking to get nuked if you don't help overthrow this failed state.

@Achmed E. Newman

| Or should that be “Jive Türkiye” now?)

good retort

I just used Turkey for the first time on this thread.

I did so deliberately.

There was a while when Andrew Anglin was pooh-poohing those who wrote ‘Ukraine’, instead of the customary ‘the Ukraine.

Of which I was happily guilty.

Like our enemies, I too have an agenda. (Basically surviving our enemies plans for us ;)

If the people of Ukraine, want us to call their nation Ukraine, (rather than the..) then how is that any skin off our arse? It’s even less words to type!

But the point is, (as I have always maintained) that we on the ‘alt-right’, (if that’s what we’re called), have nothing against the good people of Ukraine per se.

Heck no.

Rather, our enmity is with the ((leadership)) of the current Ukraine. Whereas the people are our, (and Russia’s) natural allies and brothers and sisters. Why not accommodate them?

And similarly, so too has Türkiye, (or however it’s now spelled- I’ll have to get used to that ;), have also of late, (since they’ve ratcheted down their support for sub-human head-slicers in Syria), become a kind of ally of sorts.

Erdogan has told Sweden to eat shit, they don't belong in NATO.

He's also pissed off ZOG in myriad ways, by making nice with Putin, and buying weapons ZOG doesn't want him to have, and I think some other things of late that I recall vaguely being in support of.

So I would like Turkiye to know that those of us sane and humane and decent people in America, who repudiate ZOG in the most strident terms, and support Russia and China and International Law, also support Turkiye in its laudable efforts to cut or at least reduce its fealty to ZOG – (the ((EU and the U.S. and Perfidious-led West))).

That's why I made that conscious decision to call it by the name they prefer.

FWIW

Are you suggesting the deeply unpopular president just installed in office by a Supreme Court decision somehow managed to pull off an attack on the largest city of his own country just to ignite a war with Iraq, a country with an economy the size of Delaware's? You might convince the ninnies on Reddit of something like that, but the readers of this site aren't going to bite. We aren't generally as susceptible to The Miracle of the Two Planes, Three Skyscrapers and other such absurdities.

Mossad and traitorous Jews in the United States conspired to bring down those towers to lead dumb Americans into supporting an attack on Iraq, which, like all Israel's neighbors, is viewed by Israel as an enemy.

The polls you cite demonstrating widespread belief in America that Saddam Hussein was behind the 9-11 attacks only demonstrates Jewish control of our media and gentile susceptibility to Jewish propaganda.

I saw an Israeli TV program a few years after the attacks on which all five of the "dancing Israelis" were being interviewed. When asked why they were on the rooftop in New Jersey, they openly admitted—oh, we were there to film the event.

Throw off your hatreds. Stop the lies. Accept the message of Christ. Don't waste your life in the cause of evil. Throw off your rabbinical fetters and join humanity, for crying out loud.

[Jeffrey Sachs is a] Self proclaimed Chairman of a so-called Covid Commission of a magazine (Lancet)

Sachs was the Chairman, but I doubt he was self-proclaimed. The Lancet features the COVID-19 commission on its official website (link), naming Jeffrey D. Sachs, PhD, as one of the members. Elsewhere on that site (link) the journal names Sachs as “Chair of the Lancet COVID-19 Commission”. So if Sachs proclaimed himself the commission’s chairman, he must have controlled the Lancet.

And we know that was unlikely. The Lancet’s not a “magazine”, as in your putdown; it is one of the most important and respected scientific journals in the world.

[The COVID-19 commission’s] members were mostly economists, engineers, politicians, and a librarian [sic]

The pandemic has had huge effects on many sectors of the world, not only medical. Thus the response to it must be equally broad: you want economists to measure all the impacts, engineers for their ability to handle the real world, politicians who can say what is feasible in the world of politics, and so on. In other words, the people you want on a commission for “lessons for the future from the COVID-19 pandemic” (the Lancet’s phrase) are more or less the people who were appointed. The commission didn’t need lots of researchers debating the tiniest points of virology; it needed a broad perspective, and it got it. The commissioners could undoubtedly call on all the scientific talent they wanted, as the Lancet is a premier journal.

Your attempted putdown, that the Lancet is a “magazine”, indicates that you are probably a propagandist. I hope I have blown your propaganda to bits.

RT-NATO will set up a new coordinating body to address threats to undersea infrastructure, Secretary-General Jens Stoltenberg said on Monday. His announcement comes just days after legendary investigative reporter Seymour Hersh said the US and Norway were behind the September explosions on the Nord Stream pipelines under the Baltic Sea.

“Protection of critical undersea infrastructure will also be high on our agenda,” Stoltenberg told reporters in Brussels, following the meeting of NATO defense ministers. The US-led bloc “has been working on this for many years,” Stoltenberg added, “and we are now taking it to the next level.”

The Pulitzer Prize-winning investigative journalist had accused the US of ordering the destruction of the pipelines running from Russia to Germany and Norway of helping to carry out the bombing.

The White House denounced it as “utterly false and complete fiction.” Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov pointed to the words of US Under Secretary of State Victoria Nuland to say that Americans were “basically admitting” the pipeline blasts were their doing.

It was a long time ago. Maybe YouTube? There was an audience and the interviewer was a female, if memory serves.

Thanks. As usual, McGregor is cracking in both his political and military analysis. We don't know who fed Hersh the carefully curated leak, but they possibly share McGregor's dismal view of the corrupt and discredited cabal who run Washington. The fact one of the D.C. factions felt compelled to issue this leak is more important than the substance, which is at best is carefully curated as Mike Whitney laid out. The leak was calibrated either to end the war or as a CYA and possibly both. Germans also may have been an intended audience. Regardless, as McGregor implies, there is hidden but deep division among the Ruling Class and a significant component wants to bail and put pressure on the pro-war factions to do so. His references to the economic destruction that the war portends are telling and may also have motivated this development. We all knew who blew up the pipeline, but we did not know there is a civil war breaking out in D.C. over this insanity.
